He was born on the Wible farm along the Harrisburg road, now the Robert Major place, February 4, 1866, a son of the late William and Rosann (Boyer) Wible. When he was nine years old, the family moved to Cumberland township, establishing the Wible farm on the battlefield.

Mr. Wible served as school director in Cumberland township for several years, and also was secretary of the school board for one year. He was a member of St. James Lutheran church.

Hutchison, West High street; Mrs. Carol Kimes, Spring City, and Mrs. John Basehor, at home; one son, Charles M. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock for John A. Diehl, 80, a prominent resident of Franklin county and native of Adams county, who died Friday at his home in Marion, following a heart attack suffered earlier in the day in the Marion cemetery.

School children, who saw Mr. Diehl fall, notified employees at the Marion warehouse who hurried to aid the stricken man.

Born in Butler Township

Born in Butler township, Adams county, a son of Jeremiah and Sarah Brown Diehl, Mr. Diehl was educated in the public schools and at Gettysburg college. At the age of seventeen he went to Franklin county with his parents and in 1868 entered the grain business at Marion. In 1890 he purchased the interests of Samuel M. Linn in the firm of Linn and Coyle, grain and coal dealers in Chambersburg, and became a member of the firm of Coyle and Diehl with elevators in North Main street and branches at Fayetteville, Marion, Greencastle and Richmond Furnace. When the Coyle and Diehl firm was dissolved Mr. Diehl formed the firm of Diehl, Omwake and Diehl. He retired from active business eleven years ago but retained an interest in the coal and grain business which two of his sons are now conducting in Chambersburg and at various points in Franklin county.

In politics Mr. Diehl was a Democrat but never aspired to public office.

Active in Church

He was a member and elder of the Heidelberg Reformed church at Marion. Last Sunday he was re-elected an elder of that church. He was for many years active in the Children's Aid society as a director. He was a member of the building committee during the erection of the Chambersburg hospital.

On December 8, 1876, Mr. Diehl married Hannah Mary Stenger, of Fort Loudon. She died four years ago.

Former Eagle Hotel Clerk Wins $11,500 on Lottery Ticket at Aqua Caliente

A. M. "Billie" Comer, clerk at the Hotel Slagle, Emmitsburg, was richer by $11,500 today by holding a ticket on Donnay, a horse that won third place in the Agua Caliente handicap, Sunday afternoon. Comer, who formerly worked at the Eagle hotel here, is well-known in Gettysburg.

The Emmitsburg man was apprised of his good fortune by friends in Baltimore who telephoned him the good news after hearing the returns in a Baltimore newspaper office. Friends of the winner were more excited and enthused over the outcome than Comer himself.

Offered $2,500

Several weeks ago, Comer, who is about 45 years old and a bachelor, purchased the lottery ticket for $2. Donnay was one of the favorites to win the race, and after it became known that Comer held the ticket on the Rancocas stable entry, he was offered as much as $2,500 for the pastebord, but he refused all offers. Professor M. J. "Mike" Thompson, college instructor and football official, took charge of the ticket for Comer, putting it in a safe deposit

Governor of Utah Visits Battlefield

Accepting an invitation extended by the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, Governor George H. Dern, of Utah, visited the Gettysburg battlefields, Sunday afternoon. He was accompanied by three friends.

After touring the battlefields with Harry Rhine as the guide, Governor Dern expressed amazement that the national park was so profusely and completely marked.

Governor Dern was one of four governors, members of the governors' executive council, who were week-end guests of Governor Albert C. Ritchie at the executive mansion at Annapolis, Maryland. Last week, the local Chamber of Commerce extended an invitation to Governor Ritchie and his guests to visit the battlefields. The other governors were unable to make the trip here.

General Pershing Tours Battlefield

Gen. John J. Pershing and Maj. Gen. Merritt W. Ireland, surgeon general of the United States Army, were unofficial visitors to Gettysburg and the Medical Field Service School, Carlisle barracks, Sunday. They were the guests of Col. and Mrs. C. R. Reynolds and Maj. and Mrs. Glenn I. Jones. Because of the informal character of their visit, no official salute was fired at the barracks army post.

Colonel Reynolds, commandant of the army barracks in Carlisle, and Major Jones, adjutant, are personal friends of General Pershing and General Ireland, having served with them since before the world war. Colonel Reynolds and Major Jones both served with General Ireland when he was chief surgeon of the American Expeditionary forces. Major Jones accompanied General Pershing as his personal physician when he was on his mission in South America as mediator in the Tacna-Arica plebiscite at the time of the Chile-Peru controversy.

The two officers toured the battlefield.

EXPECT LARGE INDOOR CIRCUS CROWD TUESDAY

Army Officer's Defense Against 12 Men And Smith Twins' Bout, Features.

PROGRAM WILL BEGIN AT 8 P. M.

All arrangements have been completed for the first annual indoor circus to be staged in the Eddie Plank Memorial gymnasium, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Gettysburg Lions' and Rotary clubs and the athletic department of college for the benefit of the boys' work fund.

The 100 performers concluded their final rehearsals and practice periods this afternoon and Captain McReynolds announced that everything was in readiness for what the committee believes will be the most attractive and entertaining indoor circus program ever presented here.

The program will present a variety of features including practically every known form of gymnastics, boxing, wrestling, polo game, basketball game, horizontal and parallel bar work, tumbling, clowning and many other features.

Two Big Features

Captain McReynolds, assisted by twelve members of the wrestling team of college, will demonstrate how to defend oneself against an attack by twelve men. This is expected to be one of the novel attractions. The local army officer, a student of the Japanese jiu jitsu, wrestling coach at college, will demonstrate, first by slow motion, then by alert defensive tactics, the successful methods of defense when attacked by twelve men, two using rifles, two using knives, two using guns and the rest any conceivable method of attack they wish to pursue.

The boxing bout to be staged by the Smith twins, Herbert and Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Broadway, is a return engagement of these two youngsters. They boxed as a curtain-raiser to the Wabash-Gettysburg wrestling bouts, several weeks ago, and were given a tie ovation.

The youngsters stage a thrilling bout. There isn't any "stalling" when they get together. From the tap of the gong to the final order of the referee, terminating the bout, the twins wage a tireless bout, in their own inimitable way. This feature is a show in itself, according to those who saw the youngsters box several weeks ago.

The advance sale of tickets indicates a capacity house.

ASKS CATHOLICS TO AID CHARITY

Appeal Is Made To Support World Wide Charities Of Apostolic Head Of Church.

An appeal to Gettysburg members of the Catholic Near East Welfare association to support the world-wide charities of Pope Pius XI has been issued by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown university, and president of the association. The appeal is being made in connection with the association's fourth annual roll call which begins in this diocese this week of April.

Dr. Walsh, in his communication, says: "You are one of the million Catholics in America who enrolled in this Association during the last three years in answer to urgent appeals for help from Russia and the Near East. In ten thousand churches throughout the United States, bishops, priests and people united to support the international charities of the present Holy Father. "Thanks to your magnificent response His Holiness has been enabled to send much material assistance to the unfortunate, the homeless, the starving and the persecuted in many lands, especially to helpless children who have been dependent on his help.

"This noble and apostolic work is supported entirely by your annual membership contribution. We come to you but once a year to ask your help in meeting the need of countless sufferers."

Indian Woman Accused of Murder Linked With Early History of Adams County

The following news article from the New York Telegram, relative to the early ancestry of Lila Jimeron, Indian woman charged with the murder of Mrs. Henri Marchand, wife of the noted artist, is of particular interest to Adams county, because of the reported connection in the early history of Buchanan Valley.

The article follows: "If Henri Marchand, internationally famous sculptor, had only read up a bit on local history before becoming entangled with Lila Jimeron, his 35-year-old Seneca Indian model, he would at least have been warned that witchcraft and violence ran riot in her blood.

"The Indian maiden, who sat as a model for the sculptor and, the state charges, has confessed to plotting the murder of Marchand's wife from jealousy, is reported to be a descendant of the famous Mary Jemison, herself a gentle, godly woman but mother of a tribe of violent half breeds.

"When Mary died in 1833, at 90, she had borne three sons, of whom one killed the other two and was himself killed by Indians, and four

Child's Cooing Warns Of Blaze; 5 Children Escape Log-House Fire

Youngsters Alone In Home Believed To Have Set Fire To Dwelling.

FURNISHINGS AND HOME DESTROYED

Five children, ranging in age from 6 months to 9 years, left alone in the two-story log house of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Forsythe, near Bingaman's school house above Castown, are believed to have accidentally set fire to the dwelling, about 9 o'clock Saturday morning. The log house and all contents including clothing were destroyed in the conflagration.

Mrs. Forsythe had gone to some neighbors residing nearby. Mr. Forsythe had gone to Kane's store, about a mile from the Forsythe home. The fire children were left alone in the house.

Boys Warn of Fire Some time after Mr. Forsythe had reached Kane's store, boys residing in that district arrived at the store and informed Mr. Forsythe that his home was afire. The man rushed to his home, while others spread the alarm among neighbors who also hurried to the scene of the fire.

Arriving at the burning house Mr. Forsythe found his five children safe outside, eagerly watching the tongues of flame leap skyward, the entire home enveloped in flames. Efforts of volunteers to save the structure were in vain. The flames had gained so much headway that the volunteers were unable to save any of the furniture or clothing of the family.

Just how the fire started is not known. Details of the conflagration were meager this morning. The Times was unable to get into communication with either of the Forsythes or with anyone else who was at the scene of the fire.

Loss Is Not Known

From a reliable source The Times was informed that the home was set afire by the children who are believed to have been playing with matches in the absence of their parents. This could not be confirmed. None of the children suffered any ill effects. They were escorted from the burning home by the older children and kept within a safe distance from the burning structure. The estimated loss is not known. A few chairs and a kitchen sink were reported to have been saved by the volunteers.

daughters, of whom three married and had families. "Mother Was Irishwoman "Mary was an Irishwoman born on the high seas en route from Ireland to Pennsylvania. One spring day when she was 12 years old, while the British-Americans were fighting the French and Indians, a party of French and Shawnees visited the Pennsylvania farm.

"Seizing Thomas Jemison, his wife Jane, Mary and three younger brothers and sisters, and a visiting soldier's wife and her three children, they drove them into the woods. Mary and one of the soldier's boys they spared; all the others were killed.

"Mary was taken down the Ohio. There two Shawnee sisters, whose brother had been killed, adopted her. Her ragged clothing gave way to Indian attire. Kind treatment and light work contented the child. In time she forgot her own language. When the dashing young Delaware warrior She-nin-je came along, she was willing to follow her foster sisters' dictates and marry him.

Baby's Laugh At Blaze Warns Parents Of Conflagration At Local Residence.

SHORT CIRCUIT BELIEVED CAUSE

A thirteen-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Selmar Hess, Chambersburg street, gave her parents the first intimation that their home was afire, Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The ensuing blaze, which damaged the rear end and roof of the frame dwelling, caused damage estimated from $1,500 to $2,000.

Jacqueline Hess, the infant, awoke from an afternoon's nap in the dining room, and her baby eyes evidently were attracted by the flames on the back porch which she could see through a kitchen window. The dancing flames delighted the child and she cooed and laughed so heartily that Mr. Hess, who, with his wife, was sitting in the front room, went to the dining room.

Porch In Flames

He saw at once that the rear end of the house was afire, with flames coming into the kitchen through a window. Mr. Hess threw a basin of water on the flames coming into the kitchen in a futile effort to extinguish the fire.

Seeing that the flames were gaining headway rapidly, Mr. Hess told his wife to take the baby outside while he took Junior Hess, 8, who had been ill and who was lying on a couch in the front room, out of the house, after wrapping him in a blanket. Before turning in an alarm for the fire department, Mr. Hess sought another son, Gene, 6, whom the father first believed to have been trapped in the burning outkitchen. The boy later was found playing with neighbor children in the neighborhood.

The fire, believed to have been caused by a short circuit in electric light wires in the partition between the kitchen and outkitchen, burned up between the partition to the roof.

Save Ajoing Home

The fire company played several streams of water on the fire. Thick smoke throughout the house hampered the firemen considerably, especially in their efforts to extinguish the flames on the roof, but the fire was brought under control before it communicated with the frame house of Mrs. Charles Little to the west of the Hess property.

Firemen succeeded in removing some of the household furnishings, but many articles of wearing apparel, as well as some furniture, was destroyed by fire or damaged by water.

Mr. Hess carried insurance on the property and contents.

Woman Dies In Fight With Rats in Home

Harrisburg, March 24 (AP).—Miss Esther Bland, 41, was found dead in her home today the victim of an attack of rats. Medical authorities who investigated her death said they could find nothing organically wrong and that the woman had apparently battled off the invading rodents until she was overcome.

The tragedy was discovered when neighbors saw newspapers of Friday and Saturday at the door of the house where the woman lived alone. Investigating they found her body, badly mutilated, on the floor.

Police and the county coroner were notified with the result that the woman's death officially was attributed to a sudden attack by rats.

Outdoor Hikes Attract Women

Washington (AP)—Many women government workers whose work keeps them indoors are joining the nature and hiking sections of various women's clubs of Washington.

They are planning long rambles several times a week as soon as days get longer. Government offices close at 4:30, giving the women time for several hours in the open before dark.

Box suppers are taken along and eaten at some picturesque or historic spot. Much first hand information about bird and animal life in the vicinity is gathered and related at meetings.

2 LOCAL MEN GIVEN AWARDS

H. T. Cunningham And Son In Metropolitan Service 30 And 18 Years, Respectively.

Service emblems of the Associated Gas and Electric system have been awarded to 490 employees of the Metropolitan Edison company in recognition of their service to the company and the public covering periods of five to forty years.

Vice President and General Manager C. S. Banghart, of the Reading office, made the awards.

H. T. Cunningham, superintendent of the local office, and his son, Arthur Cunningham, line foreman, were each awarded emblems, the elder Cunningham for thirty years service and the younger Cunningham for 18 years association with the Metropolitan company.

Three men at Reading, Harry Weidner, Joel Lengel and Edward Miller, who have been with the company over forty years, received gold emblems with a diamond center. Mr. Weidner, the oldest employee in point of service, has been with the company for forty-three years. The combined service of these three employees totals 125 years.

In presenting the emblems to the three forty-year men Mr. Banghart said: "I can't recall any other property in the Associated system, which now serves 1,368,000 customers in 26 states, the maritime provinces of Canada and the Philippine islands, where three diamond emblems have been awarded at one time. It speaks well for our organization, not only the service of these three men, but of all of our employees, who have been so faithful in this important public service."

Baker, newly appointed director of the Pennsylvania Forest Research Institute at Mont Alto, and Mrs. Baker were welcomed to their new home at a reception held in science hall at the Pennsylvania State Forest school. SEVEN NUNS ARE OUT OF DANGER

Bishop Sheehan Declares Catholic Sisters Are In No Imminent Peril In China.

Washington, March 24 (AP).—The action of the American missionaries at Kanchow in remaining at their posts despite reports of danger from Chinese Communists was regarded by the state department as having been fully justified.

Seven Catholic nuns, from Emmitsburg, on missionary duty in Shanghai, China, reported in danger at the hands of Communists, were declared by Bishop Sheehan, of Shanghai, to be in no imminent peril, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Shanghai. Eleven nuns were previously reported in danger.

Bishop Sheehan, a native of Streator, Ill., who is in charge of Catholic missionary activities in Northern Kiangsi, said the missionaries at Kanchow had been carrying on their work in the midst of continual depredations by Communists and bandit hordes.

Present conditions, however, were no worse than had existed for many months past, he said.

Reported Quiet On Wednesday

A telegram received from the Kanchow vicariate described the situation as "quiet."

Bishop Sheehan did not mention any plans for withdrawal of the missionaries, as suggested by the state department at Washington, which has requested the Chinese government to send troops to protect the missionaries.

Utter inability of the Nanking Nationalist government and provincial authorities to exert any control within Kiangsi was blamed by Bishop Sheehan for the widespread banditry. The bishop recently returned to Shanghai from the province. The beleaguered missionaries are members of the Vincentian order, Sisters of Charity.

The Lincoln school received the banner for parent attendance at the meeting.

BYRD'S PARTY LEAVES DUNEDIN

Flagship, City Of New York, Enroute Home With 50 Members Of Expedition.

Dunedin, New Zealand, March 24 (AP).—Carrying fifty members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition homeward, the bark City of New York, flagship of Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, sailed Sunday afternoon from Otago Harbor for Tahiti, enroute for New York.

Admiral Byrd was among a crowd of more than 10,000 that thronged the wharves to say good-by. He is remaining here for a few days to complete business affairs and will travel by mail steamer homeward, rejoining the City of New York at the Panama Canal. He bade his shipmates farewell before the tug took the bark down the channel.

Pushing out into a gray mist and bucking a stiff easterly breeze, the Byrd flagship, after sixteen months in the waters under the Southern Cross, started the expedition's journey home from its conquest of the South Pole by air, and its triumphs in the fields of exploration and scientific research.

The steamship Eleanor Bolling will follow her in a few days. The ships are leaving many friends behind them in Dunedin. Captain Melville and the crew of the City of New York have become particularly popular here since making it their base on arriving in November, 1928. Their adventurous trips to the great ice barrier won the admiration of all, including even the native Maori chiefs.

Captain Melville was entertained by the master mariners of the port and also by a big gathering of Maoris. One Maori chief expressed his delight that such small craft as the City of New York were able to venture successfully into the far regions of the southern seas.

INDIAN WOMAN

(Continued from First Page) that the kernels of corn first appear on the cob, and died two days later. Mary was sick, but by the time the corn was ripe she had recovered. Two years later another son came, and was named Thomas after her father.

Joins Indian Mother

"While She-nin-je hunted all winter Mary joined her Indian mother in Beardstown. Her husband never returned. A Dutchman tried to return her by force to the English, to claim the bounty on English persons stolen by the French. The great chief of the Indians tried to take her to Niagara, and she hid with her 3-year-old son in the tall reeds.

"Then Hio-ka-too, a 50-year-old warrior, noted for his strength and his one-time swiftness, captivated the heart of Mary, and they were married.

"Mary bore him four daughters, Jane, Nancy, Betsy and Polly, and two sons, John and Jesse. Jane died at 29.

"Mary was best known as the 'White Woman,' but her official Indian name was De-gi-wa-nahs—'Two females let words fall.'

Known as Medicine Woman

"She was known far and wide among the Indians as a medicine woman. The legend may have arisen from her experience the day before the Shawnees captured her and killed her family. For then, returning home with a horse, she saw a huge white sheet fall about her, and protect her from an indefinite doom which threatened all else.

"Mary outlived all her sons by many years. She even outlived Hio-ka-too, who himself died at the age of more than 100 years, fifty of which he had spent with Mary.

"Thomas, however, had a son son Thomas before he was killed. The younger Thomas shifted between the Buffalo and Cattaraugus reservations, between successful farming and successful tavern keeping. His eldest son was graduated from the State Normal school at Albany and was married to a white girl, and Thomas' eldest daughter was married to a white husband."

FIRE DAMAGES HOBOKEN PIERS

Loss Is Estimated At Four Million; 400 Automobiles Destroyed.

Hoboken, N. J., March 24 (AP).—The worst fire this city has experienced since 1900, which started at 10 o'clock Saturday night and wrecked the upper part of waterfront, was believed under control at 6 o'clock Sunday night. Two piers of the Lamport & Holt line were ruined and more than 400 automobiles destroyed. Estimates of the damage vary from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000.

Two New York fire boats continued Sunday night to play powerful streams of water on the wreckage to prevent spread of the fire. Pine timber forming the flooring of the pier sidings, covered with concrete, were still smoldering. Danger of the flames reaching other piers has passed.

One Ship Loaded With Oil

Five vessels of the Lamport and Holt line, the 21,000 ton liner Voltaire, the Cid, the Strabo, the Bruyere and the Bernini were towed to safety in the middle of the river by fireboats. The freighter Cid, loaded with a cargo of oil, caused grave fears at first that if flames reached her there would be an explosion that would precipitate an uncontrollable conflagration.

The fire started in a pile of oil and rags about 200 feet behind Pier 16. A brisk wind carried the flames to this pier along a float bridge, which is used by floats to put freight cars ashore. From the float bridge, the flames spread downward, attacking the wooden underpinning.

Oil Causes Fire to Spread

Pier 16, a wooden structure about 500 feet long, was destroyed within a few hours after the fire started. Spreading by means of a heavy layer of oil on the water, the flames then attacked the wooden underpinning of Pier 15 and spread along 1,000 feet of bulkhead under the steel structure.

Firemen concentrated their efforts on breaking through the seven inches of concrete flooring which separated them from the blazing foundation of Pier 15. With hydraulic rams and electric drills they managed to get at the burning timbers in some places with streams of water. The constant danger that the concrete plaza would collapse, however, necessitated extreme caution on the part of the firemen.

HE FAILS TO PAY CLAIMS IN YORK

Warrants Are Issued For James Aughinbaugh, Gettysburg; Is Held For Hearing.

Constable George A. Storm, of the thirteenth ward, York, came to Gettysburg Saturday and served two warrants on James Aughinbaugh, 526 York street, while the latter was at his work as an inspector for the state highway department on the Taneytown road.

One charged embezzlement, on oath of R. W. Strickler, a produce dealer in York, for whom Aughinbaugh worked for six months. He is alleged to have failed to turn in money collected by him in the business on November 9. Another charged failure to pay for the use of an automobile on two different occasions from the U-Drive-It company in York, of charges totalling $56.48, on March 14 and 27, on oath of Homer V. Wischaupt, manager.

Aughinbaugh was admitted to bail by Justice Shealer on the embezzlement charge of $500 and on the failure-to-pay charge of $300 for a hearing before Alderman Stager in York next Friday. He gave the constable a check for the entire amount claimed in both warrants and, if acceptable to the prosecutors, the charges, it is understood, will be dropped.

TO SING IN HANOVER

Under the auspices of the choir of Trinity Reformed church, Hanover, the Gettysburg college glee club will give a concert in the chapel of the church on Thursday evening. The club, comprising 30 voices, is directed by E. E. Schroeder, York, who is also choirmaster at Trinity Reformed church.

AMUSEMENTS

STRAND
Wall Street activities motivate "The Gamblers," the newest Warner Bros. Vitaphone all-talking production at the Strand today and Tuesday, practically all its important characters being connected with the Emerson Trust company, a financial organization.

The two characters not associated with the Emerson Trust, nevertheless, have a most important place in its activities, since one is a government prosecutor in the Attorney General's department, and the other, his wife, is a former sweetheart of the man who is the active head of the financial company. These three roles are played, respectively, by B. H. Warner, Lois Wilson and Jason Robards, while other members of the all-star cast are George Fawcett, Johnny Arthur, Frank Campeau, Pauline Garon and Charles Sellon.

JACQUELINE ON HER OWN

by RICHARD STARR.

SYNOPSIS: Jacqueline Grey longed for adventure. Her idea was rather vague but she had a taste of it when she squandered her savings to dine at the Savoy and attend the theatre in regal style. But the wages of a dress model at Byrns in London are meager, even for one so beautiful as Jacqueline. Oh, if she only had 500 pounds; then she could have her fling, was her thought. But that was forgotten temporarily by more pressing thoughts that arose when she lost her job. For seven days she vainly sought work. She was nearly penniless. Then she chanced to see a notice in a newspaper that quickened her pulse. The law firm of Rustum and Coles was seeking her. A visit to their office brought unexpected good fortune. A bequest of 530 pounds awaited. James Booker, the old peddler to whom she had been kind, had repaid her. Her dream shall become a reality! She shall have her fling!

Chapter 7

MR. BROWN TRIES AGAIN

"Life is very difficult," Jacqueline informed herself after her statuette friend had gone.

She sat on the edge of the narrow bed and gazed absently at her divided reflection in the mirror.

"There's poor old Dorothy, for instance. All she wants in the world is Mr. Brown, a flat and a brown

"That must be very nice," murmured Jacqueline softly.

A hollow cough sounded near them.

"What's that," demanded Brown. "That's Mr. Penfold," said Jacqueline.

She nodded towards the folding doors.

"It's a bedroom on the other side," she explained. "Mr. Penfold's bedroom. He's ill."

"Great Caesar!" gasped Brown, aghast. "What a house. Can't we go for a walk round the block?"

"Why not?" agreed Jacqueline. "I'll get my hat."

Walking in the Pimlico squares they found peace; and Mr. Brown proceeded further to enlarge his plan of campaign.

Jacqueline gently but firmly repulsed all his advances. "You see, Mr. Brown, you only think you love me. Really, you know nothing about me. You like—or think you like—the color of my eyes, the color of my hair, the shape of my mouth and the way I walk and hold myself."

"So I do," said Brown. "Well, that's all right," replied Jacqueline. "But if you marry me you wouldn't marry just my mouth and my hair and so on—and there are things inside me that would frighten you. They almost frighten me sometimes."

"I'll risk those," said Brown sturdily. "I'll give you anything you want."

"Will you? But how do you know you can? You think I want a home—a flat perhaps; some furniture; housework to do during the daytime; your company in the evenings; a—a—nurse?"

"Well?" said Brown, softly. "I don't want any of those things."

"What do you want then?"

"First, I want adventure. I am nearly 20. Life ought to be an adventure to a girl at that age. Once a girl settles down to a flat and furniture, her chance of adventure is over. I want to get up every morning and say to myself: 'Now what is going to happen to me to-day?'"

"I don't believe you love me," he said, bitterly.

"I don't, Mr. Brown."

"It's that fellow, Keswick Dell."

Jacqueline saw her chance. "You need not worry about Mr. Dell. He's far more interested in Dorothy Dalton than in me."

"What?"

Mr. Brown stopped short in his walk while one might have counted twenty. When he resumed Jacqueline could see him thinking.

"Haven't you seen it?" she continued innocently. "I thought everybody knew. Of course, Dorothy's a jolly pretty girl, and heaps too good for him. But I shall be very much surprised if she doesn't accept him."

Very soon afterwards Jacqueline said she must leave him, and Mr. Brown raised no objection. He was still thinking.

"It's working," murmured Jacqueline, as she watched him walk away with his head down. "I shouldn't be surprised if Dorothy gets her flat after all before she's too fat for her job. Men are strange. I don't believe any man really begins to want a girl until he knows somebody else is after her."

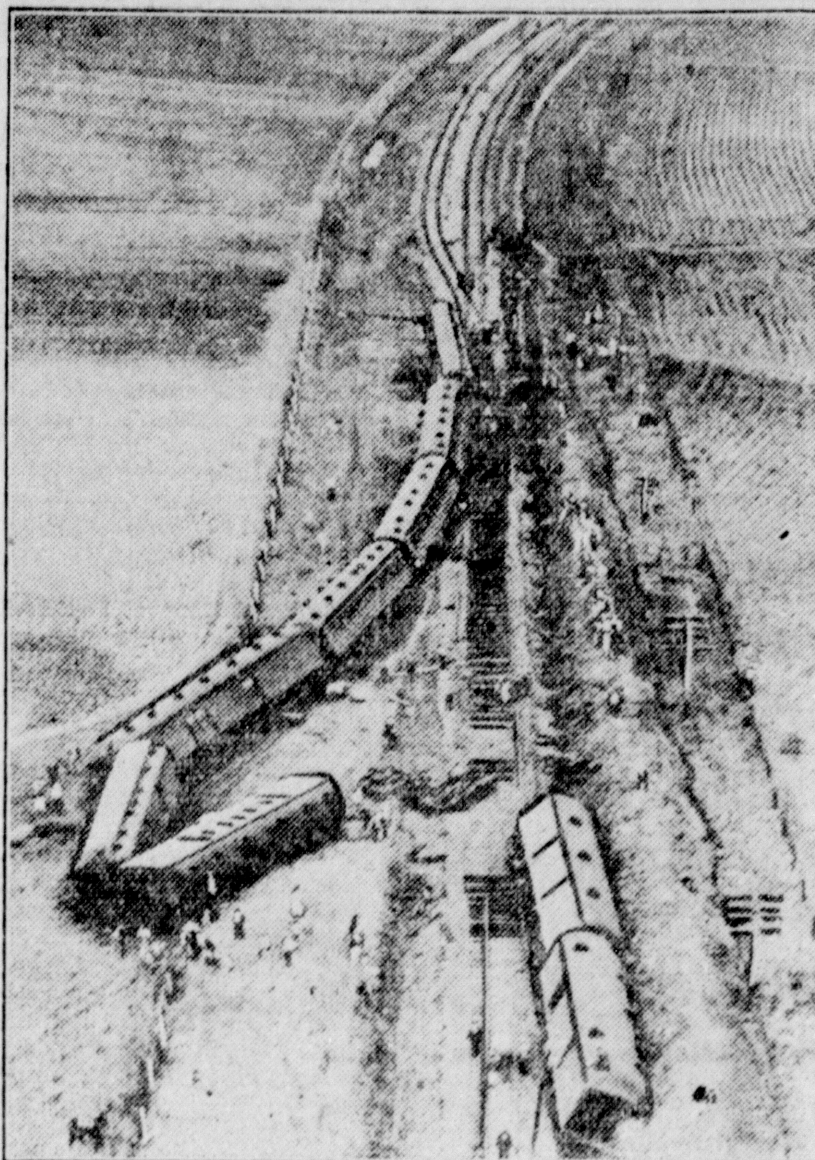

"Well, once more to bed in the top-floor back—for nearly the last time, I hope. This is the end of a perfect day."

41 MICHIGAN FARMERS AVERAGE $11,580 INCOME

East Lansing, Mich. (AP)—A record of farming achievement well above the average in Michigan is revealed by a recent study of 41 master farmers of the state. These farmers average a gross income estimated at $11,580 from an investment of $39,000. Production on their farms ranges from 50 to 200 per cent above the average for the state. Every master farmer has an automobile and all but one use electric power. Forty-four silos are found on the 37 farms represented by the group. Thirty-two college, university and normal school graduates are included in their families.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould

John Arnold Heydler, the National league's able and even-tempered chief executive, struck a significant note when he remarked to me recently:

"When I am among golfers, they talk baseball. When I am among baseball players, they talk golf."

he royal and ancient game has spread like a prairie fire among big league players, especially in the last few years. The two sports have in common the requirements of a good eye, steady hand, easy swing with the club and control. The result is that an unusual number become skillful golf players.

The first star I saw in the South this winter was Babe Ruth, attired in natty golf outfit, smacking the ball consistently from a practice tee 250 yards with a new wood cleek. The Babe has spent more time on the links getting ready to earn the first $80,000 than he has on the ball field. He scores in the 70's but he is the second best golfer on the New York club. Sam Byrd beat Ruth for the team "title."

At Miami, I had to taxi out to the Miami Country club to have a chat with Bob Shawkey, the new Yankee manager, who is consistently around 85 and improving, as a golfer.

A report from the West that Sam Rice, veteran Washington outfielder, had shot a 69 on some course or other caused a bigger furor in Florida than any baseball news. All hands admitted Sam might do it, if he happened to be "hot."

Dizzy Vance, the big Brooklyn pitcher, is a fine golfer. So is the Detroit southpaw, Earl Whitehall, who scores in the 80's on the regulation courses and is a form of sudden death to his opponents on the miniature layouts that have become more prevalent this season in Florida than the Mediterranean fruit fly. Bucky Harris, the popular Tiger manager, is another adict.

Connie Mack and Eddie Collins play good games and Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn pilot, moves majestically around the links.

A pop fly used to be commonly labelled a "Texas Leaguer." Now it's a "mashie shot" in the ballplayers' jargon. They speak of "golfing the ball" when the batter connects with an upward swing. A runner blocked off at the plate is "stymied."

"Golf is all right so long as the players do not take it too seriously or begin to talk about it around the clubhouse." Bucky Harris said.

"On an off-day it's a useful way for the players to spend their time. Too much golf might affect the swing of some batters but ordinarily I cannot see where one game has any marked influence on the other."

At least three major league stars have been conspicuous on the links. Stuffy McInnis and Fred Merkle, a pair of first basemen, were good enough to get jobs as golf professionals and Tilly Shaffer, the old Giant third baseman, has an entry in the national amateur at Pebble Beach last summer.

Jigger Statz, an outfielder, was one of the best of baseball golfers. . . . and George Wright, famous old-time ball player, is among those credited with pioneering golf in the U. S. A. . . . He is still living to tell the tale.

Although he must rebuild the better part of his line this year, due to the loss by graduation of such stars as Law, Cannon, Moynihan and Twomey, the master of Notre Dame, Knute Rockne, is not worried in the slightest about his gridiron for next fall.

Rockne talks, lives, eats and enjoys football on the sands of Miami Beach, Florida, just as easily in February as he does in his workshop at South Bend or across the banquet table at any other time of the year. His youngest son boots a football around the sand. Scouts, coaches, friends, pupils and rambling journalists visit "The Rock" to bask in the sun, hear the waves break—and talk of the gridiron.

I found Rockne holding court, so to speak, on the sands where he has spent most of the winter recovering from the very serious leg ailment, a blood clot that kept him from even being on the side-lines in most of the games Notre Dame played last season. The famous coach has made a remarkable comeback and is now well on the road to complete recovery. He still favors his leg but can get around easily. Tanned a deep brown, he looks as rugged as ever, but he has decided that his days of going into the line to show the boys how to block are over.

"You know, my injury may be traced to the bumps and bangs I took out there for years on the practice field," said Rockne. "I liked to get out there to show 'em how to do it. I would anchor myself and invite a guard, for example, to try to bowl me over. I took

PRIESTS FIND HAVENS IN DENS

Driven From Temples By Government Decree, Teachers Take To Gambling Dens.

By Morris J. Harris

Hankow (AP)—Driven from their temples by government decree, Taoist priests in Hankow, exponents of one of the oldest religions in China, have taken refuge in gambling dens and other similar resorts where the proprietors permit them to preach on a commission basis.

The faithful who attend services are taxed a small sum each and the priests divide with their hosts in lieu of rent.

Since the beginning of the Chinese Republic the authorities have conducted a campaign against the Taoists, branding them as nothing more than organized clairvoyants and fortune tellers. Numerous decrees have been issued at Nanking ordering the priests to vacate their temples and find other professions or leave the country.

But a religion as old as Taoism, no matter what the government may think of it, could not thus be swept out of existence. Most of the Taoists in Hankow left their temples, but they took up headquarters in side-streets and alleyways, only to be driven out by the police.

Proprietors of gambling houses, seeing an opportunity to increase their receipts, engaged the priests to tell fortunes to their customers and to conduct services at a fixed sum per person. Under this sort of protection, the Taoists have contrived to keep their faith alive although many have been thrown into jail.

Various other methods have also been resorted to by the Taoists in keeping their public. One enterprising priest opened an establishment which he called the "School of Perpetual Truth." He charged a minimum fee of $6 to all clients who consulted him at his offices and as much as $50 to visit the faithful in their homes. He was recently arrested.

Another equally enterprising priest rented a small house on the outskirts of the city and called it "Incense Hill Temple." Hundreds flocked there until the police learned of it and arrested the Taoist.

Dozens of similar cases have occurred from time to time, not only in Hankow but in neighboring towns and cities where Taoism has flourished for centuries. Despite their reverses, the priests are conducting a valiant fight against the government's edicts.

many a thumping around the legs and thighs which probably contributed to the condition that laid me up last year."

"I don't know whether we will have as great a team in 1930 as we did in 1929," went on Rockne. "Teams like that are hard to duplicate. The boys showed great spirit under Tom Lieb. They knew their stuff."

"But there doesn't seem any reason why we should not have another good outfit. It may be necessary to put some sophomores in the line, something we do not try very often, but as you know I have a veteran backfield, losing only Jack Elder among the regulars."

Horton Smith is only around voting age but the Missouri golf wizard has acquired a seasoned outlook on the game well beyond his years.

They were congratulating the great young professional around Tampa after his sensational triumph over Bobby Jones at Savannah but it was just like so much water on a duck's back.

"Well," drawled the big youth, "Bobby certainly is a fine sportsman."

Other than that, Smith had no comment to make. His brother professionals did most of the after-dinner speaking for him. They seemed to take it as a "party victory," for it is no secret that the prod, individually and collectively, regard Jones as the man they must beat in any tournament he enters. They call Bobby "the big shot."

It is worth a celebration when any one of them turns the trick, any day or in any event.

"Being A Lady" Popular Again

Chicago (AP)—A woman educator in a convent, noted for devotion to deportment, sees freedom in manners for young women passing out with freedom of dress.

Being a "lady," highly desirable in the Victorian age, again is popular, said Ethel Fitzpatrick, social dean of Rosary college.

"The old magic of gracious behavior again is the key to the world's treasure chest—for women," she says.

Today's fashions draw distinct lines between sports, afternoon, evening and office attire, and "crossing the line is no pardonable social trespass."

Emmitsburg Ball Club Reorganizes

Emmitsburg, March 24.—At the annual meeting of the Emmitsburg baseball association, held in the parlors of the Hotel Slagle, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. W. R. Cadle; vice president, John H. Rosmsteel, Jr.; secretary, J. William Breichner; treasurer, Louis Cooper; manager, L. L. Mondorff; assistant manager, Eugene S. Burroughs, Jr.

The Emmitsburg team, which is a member of the Frederick county league, will be called out for practice next week as several exhibition games will be arranged by Manager Mondorff before the league series begins, which will be on the second Saturday in June.

In order to raise funds to carry on the season, the ladies of this section are arranging card parties and dances to assist the team in their endeavors. Manager Mondorff says the prospects for a fast team are most promising.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Our Affairs with Spain Settled:
We are pleased to be able to announce that the difficulties between the U. States and Spain, in regard to the Black Warrior case at Cuba, have been settled—the government of Spain having agreed to pay a just indemnity and acknowledging that the authorities of Cuba exceeded their power in the case. The Spanish government would do nothing until Mr. Soale, of minister, resigned and left Madrid. Immediately on his doing so the Spanish Minister of Foreign Relations made the satisfactory explanation. It is very evident, therefore, that the injudicious selection of such an individual as Mr. Soale, (who was peculiarly obnoxious to Spain on account of his affiliation in the fillbustering expeditions to Cuba,) retarded what would otherwise have been promptly arranged.

American Oil

acquired the business and properties of The Penn Oil company, of Washington, D. C., it is announced. The transaction includes 65 service stations in the District of Columbia

The Penn service stations will sidiary of The American Oil company, and the acquisition of these stations brings the number operated by this chain up to 83 in the Dis-

District of Columbia and one of the most important on the Atlantic seaboard and will sell American Oil company products, Amoco gas, other than that of the service sta-

ON DECLINING AN INVITATION TO A MASQUERADE
Thanks, good lady, but I find Mine is an ordinary mind
To masquerading not inclined.

But ill-at-ease should I appear Dressed as a stirring buccaneer
Or some swash-buckling musketeer.

My legs too scrawny are to show
In velvet pants and furbelow
I'd make a silly Pierrot.

I lack the costume flair, I think.
From the unusual garb I shrink,
And I look horrible in pink.

Some men in uniforms can strut
And play the medaled general, but My coat must be of plainer cut.

No, no, dear lady, I confess I lack the utter shamelessness
Of men who prance in fancy dress.

Little Jack Rabbit
By David Cory

You remember in the last story dear Uncle Lucky had driven the Luckymobile right into a push-cart loaded with eggs. Had the eggs been potatoes or oranges, or even pineapples, it would not have been so bad, but eggs! dearie me, of all things. It certainly was too bad and maybe three bad, for all the eggs weren't fresh, I'm sure!

"You're under arrest!" shouted the Policeman Cat, over whose beautiful uniform a few of the eggs had spattered. Goodness me! why should that protector of the law have been so close to the scene of the accident?
But, there you are! And in a few minutes the poor old gentleman rabbit was taken to the Station House and led before the Judge, an old Gander, with a quack in his voice.

"It seems to me a pity
When you come to Carrot City
That you should drive so very recklessly.
With no regard for other people.
You might have climbed a high church steeple.
Or knocked the blossoms off my dogwood tree."

poetically recited that old gander judge, pushing up his spectacles to get a better near-at-hand view of dear Uncle Lucky.

"Indeed, I'm very sorry, your Honor," remarked the old gentleman rabbit. "I've never seen a pushcart come round a corner so quickly. I had no time to turn out for it."

Pulling out his blue silk polka dot handkerchief, excited Uncle Lucky mopped his forehead and polished his spectacles. But, gracious me!
he was so excited that he laid it on his head and tried to squeeze his precious wedding steeple hat into living where I lived," he told me,

"and I wish I could take them off on adventures with me. I would like to share my fun with some one else."

"You've been so good to me, giving me that magic, that I've hated to be greedy and ask for anything more, but would it be possible for me to have enough magic to take them with me?"

"I told him I'd see the magic maker and after I had seen the magic maker and found out I could have more magic for the Little Black Clock he began waiting to get your attention so you'd start off with him. He was well supplied with magic this time—so he could arrange and do everything. So you'll always be able to have adventures with him."

But John and Peggy weren't paying much attention now to the Grandfather Clock. They were jumping about the Little Black Clock saying.

"You chose us! You chose us!
Oh, what luck for us."
And the Grandfather Clock smiled his great, broad, friendly smile, but the Little Black Clock just grinned
—a huge and happy grin.

JOHN AND PEGGY
By Mary Graham Bonner

The little Black Clock took the children the next evening to see the old Grandfather Clock.

"I've often meant to ask you," said John, "how you happened to begin taking us on adventures, and why you never took any others before us?"

"You'll hear all about that this evening," the Little Black Clock replied.

As soon as they arrived at the place where the Grandfather Clock lived the grandfather began to tell how it all happened.

"For years and years," he said,
"the Little Black Clock stood upon the same place on the desk in the back hall where he now stands with his hands at seven o'clock because he had decided to accept the magic."

"One day he came to me—or rather it was really night-time, but he had turned the time back so that the sun was still shining when he arrived—and he said he had something to ask me."

Knotty Problem
Is Before Court

Chicago, March 24 (AP).—The federal court had under consideration Saturday the question of whether a man executed for murder died "accidentally." Harry Diamond was executed at the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City in 1924 for the murder of his wife. His family is seeking to collect $12,648 on a life insurance policy.

Attorneys for the family submitted to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward a written argument to the effect that "Diamond was strapped to a chair by unknown persons, shocked by electricity against his will" and this within the meaning of the insurance policy, constituted an accident.

passenger, low-winged monoplane,

his coat-tail pocket.
"How much are the eggs worth, or, rather, how much were they worth?" asked the learned judge, with a grin. The push-cart man, who was an old Rhode Island Red Rooster, began to figure with pencil and pad.

"Here is a ten dollar lettuce leaf bill," cried Uncle Lucky. "That will pay for them all, even the bad ones!"

"What about my uniform?" asked the Policeman Cat with a purr, looking from Uncle Lucky to the Judge Gander.

"Get into my Luckymobile and I'll buy you a new one," promised the old gentleman rabbit.

"Case is dismissed," quacked the old feathered Judge, and off drove Uncle Lucky to the Three-in-One Cent Store, where the Policeman Cat picked out a uniform that fitted like the paper on the wall.

"Well, I started out to find my fortune," sighed Uncle Lucky, turning with a sad smile to his bunny nephew, "but instead I've paid a fine and bought a new uniform. Heigh ho, how the winds blow!" But not for long did the kind old gentleman rabbit remain sad. Presently he began to whistle.

"Never worry, seldom hurry,
Life's too short for sorrow.
Make today bright and gay, Trouble never borrow."

Sing and dance, hop and prance,
Hopeful for tomorrow.
Don't be blue, 'twill never do,
Banish care and sorrow."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his wonderful condition. I have used it with him for every little upset or cold. It always has him back to normal in a few hours."

When a child shows, by bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or feverishness, that the little bowels are clogged, you know the system needs a prompt cleansing.

California Fig Syrup does the work quickly and gently. In addition, it helps tone and strengthen weak bowels and stomach. So it gives lasting help.

The word California marks the genuine; the pure vegetable product loved by children and pronounced safe and effective by doctors.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS
THE ART OF NEVER MINDING
I KNOW many people who see much. I am convinced that one of the fine arts is to ignore—to never mind.
If we are able to see into our own hearts and recognize great bundles of faults and whole acres of mistakes that we have made time and time again, then just consider the fact that there are others to whom these faults and mistakes must look very great indeed.
But just the minute I begin to see the beautiful traits in my friend,
I notice that all his virtues begin to take on new lustre.
I am all the time trying to learn this very great art of seeing the good in my friend and ignoring the bad.
How quickly a particular pain or ailment seems to leave just the minute you start to ignore it.
Even the tiny baby knows this. He find that if he will but cry and make a fuss he will be given attention. But let him be ignored when he stubs his toe or gets a little fall and he forgets the imagined hurt almost at once.
Learn to ignore the hurts of the world. This is a big order—but if you want to be strong, able, and convincing as a man or woman, it must be done.
It is a common thing to meet a person who believes that there is little good in this world—that if he only had the chance he could make a much better world than this one God has made and given us as a playground for a while. But I notice that the busy, thinking person has no such idea. It's a great world for him—for there is so much to do, and so little time in which to do it.
Learn to never mind—to overlook much. Life is a storehouse of beauty.

FRENCH MAIDS SCORN DOWRIES

Backbone Of French Marriage
System Is Going Begging, Observers Note.

Paris (AP)—Dowries, the backbone of the French marriage system, are going begging.

The Paris Poor Relief has six $400 dowries a year to award to maids who measure up to certain conditional standards, and many other cities have similar funds, some with prizes of $1,400. But there are few takers.

Many of the dowries are hedged with conditions to which the pre-war girl subscribed but which cause the 1930 feminine model to laugh with disdain. There are dowries for those who wear their hair long, or go to church regularly, or help with the housework, or support their parents and all place a time limit on marriage.

Still there are hundreds of these awarded each year, many of them to "rosiers." This is the term applied to girls chosen in villages or towns as the most worthy and who are crowned with roses at a public ceremony.

This custom is 15 centuries old. It originated with St. Medard, bishop of Noyon, and wealthy for those days. He set aside part of his property for this purpose and in 525 at Salency crowned his sister who was chosen by the village as worthy of her clerical brother's bounty. The custom still continues there and has spread to other communities.

MUMMASBURG Mummasburg.—A St. Patrick's party was held at the home of the Misses Marjiam and Margie Starry on Monday evening. Those present were: Misses Joanna White, Kathryn Bean, Margie Starry, Elizabeth Bucher, Alma Fritz, Miriam Starry, Anna Topper, Ruth White, Rheda Sell, Idella Topper, Marguerite White, Robert Guise, Emmert Longnecker, George White, Charles Weaver, Cecil Bean, Clarence Fritz, Glenn Deardorff, Melvin Bean, Sterling Sell, William Knipfle, Harold Deardorff and Arthur Deardorff. The evening was spent in playing games after which refreshments were served.

SOVIET MOVIES AID ART
Moscow (AP)—All movie theatres throughout the Soviet Union decided recently to contribute their receipts for one Sunday to a fund for a huge "All-Union Palace of Art," which is to be built in Moscow as a model institution of proletarian art.

HOW "FROSH" STARTED
Eugene, Ore. (AP)—Dr. F. G. G. Schmidt, professor of German at the University of Oregon, believes the word "frosh" came from the German "Frosch," meaning frog. That term was applied to the "greenest" student in Goethe's "Faust."
